

Five Habits Of Wealth Builders

Friday, 31 August 2007

Most are looking for ways to be richer than they are now, wealthier than yesterday. They hope to strike a golden opportunity that brings them enough to allow them to retire financially free. Are you one of them looking for the golden egg?

Usually, when someone found that opportunity, he will find it too hard to maintain that kind of discipline to turn the opportunity into a successful one. That's probably the reason that mostly 90% of the people gave up on any business or opportunity that they involved.

In this article you will find out the habits of the rich. You can discover what contributed to their wealth.

The rich work hard

They work extremely hard in building their wealth. On average, millionaires worked 60 hours per week to get to where they are. Most people are complaining working 40 hours per week. That's why they are not rich.

The rich spend most of their time building their source of income, educating themselves and networking. They enjoy spending their time building their wealth.

Even if you just work an extra 10 hours a week. That will be 520 hours a year. You sure achieve a whole lot more with those extra hours. With the snowball effect kicked in, your wealth can explode in time to come.

Good at what they do

The rich give their best at everything they do. They achieve excellence in their any tasks. They usually know their strength, and understand that to fully utilize their strength in any tasks is more effective. They will leverage on others to compliment their weakness.

Because they are good at what they do, others want to do business with them, thus attracting more business opportunities, and more wealth.

Multiple stream of income

The rich are always look out to build more sources of income. One source may give them $3,000 a month, if they are able to build five sources, they are getting $15,000 a month.

While you are looking out for other opportunities to increases your sources of income, be cautious about scams out there. With the internet, there are millions of scams lurking around waiting for their prey. Ensure that you fully understood the opportunities before you get involve.

Moderate in spending

The rich watches their spending habits. They know exactly how much to spend monthly. They control their spending, will not fall into the trap of consumerism, which is chasing after every new thing in the market.

They will spend on dresses that they will not wear, or pay for a cup of coffee for $5 daily. They fully understood that money spent is money lost.

Extraordinary in their saving

You may hear some guru said, save 10% of your income. If you want to be rich fast, saving 10% is simply not good enough. You must save 30% of your income. 30% may be too much for you, but start somewhere. If you can only start with 5%, so be it. Gradually increase the saving monthly, in no time, you find that you can save 30%.

Joe is an enlightened entrepreneur started his business in an out-of-the-box way in 2003. To read how he started his business, go to <http://www.millionaire-idea.com/small-business-idea.html>